

The Bradbury Science Museum Association is official and offers memberships

July 1, 2016

mission of the Bradbury Science Museum is to stimulate interest in, and enthusiasm for, science and technology while promoting public understanding and appreciation of the work being done at the Los Alamos National Laboratory. The Bradbury Science Museum Association (BSMA) was created to offer more programs and services—including memberships—that were impossible previously because the Museum is part of a government-funded entity. With your membership support, the BSMA will do many things like create a needed volunteer program, operate a museum store, offer more educational programs to neighboring and underserved communities, and so much more... Membership rates range from $35 for a student or educator to $75 per year for a family membership that includes two adults and all children under 18 years of age residing in the same house. What will membership get you? Every BSMA member will receive an official membership card (impress your friends), a decal (impress even MORE people), and a tax deduction along with admission benefits at more than 300 science museums nationwide. (Not valid within a 90-mile radius of the BSM.) But that's not all! Additional offerings in the works include volunteer opportunities, a subscription to a quarterly BSMA newsletter, invitations to special events and discounts for forthcoming BSMA products and fee-based programs. Such a deal! To learn more about the membership levels and benefits, visit this page. Questions? Send an email to BSMA.membership@gmail.com.
